Topic - paragraphs (The age of Computers)

The present world to-day is the world of computers. They are just like thinking machines. It can be defined as the electronic device which inputs raw data from the user, manipulates it and gives the result to the user as the output. In performance they are million times faster and better in occurrence than a human brain, they possess a wonderful memory also. All the information required in an office or factory can be had on the screen by merely pressing a button. It had a tremendous storage capacity. These computers had also the characteristics of diligence and verbatimity. This sophisticated electronic machine saves time and improves efficiency. Everybody is going to be benefited in the age of automation. We can have correct weather forecast and diagnosis of diseases.

So far, so good. But the use of computers in the highly populated country like India will add to the problem of unemployment. These days computer awareness is among every age group in the society. Each and every shops, Hospitals, Banks, Railway station are using this artificial brain to make their problems easy but this no use its human brain will in due course weaken our thinking power.

(2) Co-education

Co-education can be explained as the study of boys and girls together. It is widely popular to-day in every country. In such type of education boys and girls study together in the same college and in the same class. They enjoy a lot of freedom to know each other, to enjoy picnics and excursions together, to discuss and debate on matters of current importance. Their free mixing has raised a controversy. It is objected to because free mixing of boys and girls is not good for each other, They often go astray and ruin their career, They are immature at their age and

They cannot keep romance within bounds. But the system of co-education is defended for several reasons. It is economical and helps boys and girls to understand each other. They overcome their shyness and the strong attraction of the opposite sex. They learn to work together like comrades. Co-education has come to stay, and it cannot be done away with now.

② Hard work Surely lead to success

As the heart beats are essential for life, in the same way hard work is needed for success. There is no cut and dried formula of success, no royal road to reach the top. Success is not achieved by magic of mantras. Work, work and work that is the only key to make an achievement in any field. Hard work can only make anybody's life a complete success. Honesty and constant intelligent labour can only lead your goal in life. Sincere labour towards the target never goes waste, it helps the person in one way or the other, first set the target before you try to achieve it with all your heart and soul. While working hard sometimes hindrance come in our path but one should overcome it by firm determination toward his target. Let nothing else draw

Give attention and take your time. But your work should be methodical and purposeful. You should keep your all senses open when you run a race for any prize. In this world nobody is born great. Hard work is the only key to success. Luck and chance also favour only to the deserving candidate.
